Rare Teaching Toys

By Terry and Kim Kovel

Every child has to learn the alphabet before learning to read, so some toys for those under five years old have been "teaching toys." Blocks were the first. The oldest mention of alphabet blocks was in 1693 in England. But blocks with letters and pictures were not available for most families until 1820 when large numbers of sets were made in a factory. Well-to-do young girls educated in the 18th century learned the alphabet while sewing samplers. They had to be able to stitch identification on all the family linens when they married. Most toys were made to teach religion, like a carved wooden Noah's ark, or to teach a skill like cooking using a toy stove, pots and pans. Toy makers created a few teaching toys, cards with letters, and cloth alphabet books. A rare, famous teaching toy is the "Alphabet Man" or "Yankee Schoolmaster." The 10-inch-tall iron figure of a man had an arm that moved when a lever was pushed. The man blinked his eyes, raised his left arm and pointed to a hole high on his chest. A letter appeared and the student had to name it. The man is dressed like a schoolmaster and looks like a stern teacher. No one knows who made this complicated toy that was patented in 1884. Or why his right arm is held behind his back and his index finger is pointing to the side. Several of the men have sold in the past ten years. This toy sold recently with some missing paint for $23,600.

The iron man is pointing to a letter of the alphabet to help a child learn letters. The toy brought $23,600 in a 2016 spring sale.

BRIMFIELD'S PREMIER SHOW

D'Amore Promotions is pleased to announce the addition of an exciting new show to its 2016 lineup! The Virginia Jewelry, Art, & Antiques Show will be held at the Virginia Beach Convention Center on August 5, 6, & 7.

This show will feature over 100 quality dealers presenting antique furniture, fine art, estate jewelry, Asian art, Americana, porcelains, textiles, crystal, silver, antique rugs, and objets d'art.

The Virginia Jewelry, Art, & Antiques Show will be the largest antiques show in the Hampton Roads area—which encompasses Virginia Beach, Norfolk, Chesapeake, Portsmouth, Hampton, Newport News, & Suffolk. This huge metropolitan area has a population of over 1.7 million, and is the 37th largest in the United States! With hundreds of historical sites and attractions, as well as miles of waterfront property and beaches that attract throng of tourists annually, the area is also known for its enormous military presence. Virginia Beach is also only 40 minutes from the historic Williamsburg and Jamestown area and only an hour and a half away from D'Amore Promotion's history of presenting quality antique markets and continues to grow with the addition of this new and exciting antiques show. Their motto is: affordable booth rents, aggressive advertising, and high volume traffic!

There has not been a show of this quality and size in the Hampton Roads area for over 2 years.

With the close proximity of the Virginia Beach Convention Center to the oceanfront, this new event will certainly attract many tourists, as well as the die-hard collectors and antique aficionados of this diverse demographic region!

Whether you are an antique dealer looking for a new show this summer, or
